Dear Ms Lambden,

I am writing in response to the invitation for views regarding the possible introduction of an animal welfare act on the Isle of Man. As a member of the public with experience working in the field of animal welfare both on the Isle of Man and England, I know all too well the physical and emotional pain that some humans inflict on animals. I strongly feel that an animal welfare act similar to the UK Animal Welfare Act 2006 must be enforced to ensure that any human found to have caused harm to an animal be dealt with in a manner that will prevent them from continuing. Unfortunately there have been many cases of unnecessary harm and neglect to animals on the Isle of Man and I feel it is essential that legislation is enforced to ensure that these levels and reduced an animal welfare standards are maintained.

Yours Sincerely
Jen Adams
