Good Morning,

I urge you to please consider adopting the UK Act 2006 and that the Five Freedoms be incorporated into the Act (as they are in the UK Act), as this recognises that an animal's physical wellbeing is not a good enough judgement, it is now widely recognised that animals suffer horrendous untold mental cruelty from not being allowed to exercise their normal behaviours based upon their species.

I also urge that you consider the appointment of inspectors who are permitted access to property or are able to seek a warrant to have access without troubling the police who have other priorities.

I think that these inspectors should have the right to issue Improvement Orders to owners or animal carers guilty of neglect and for the animal's safety, be able to seize an animal if there is cruelty involved or if Improvement Orders for neglect are not followed.

And finally I would urge you to please consider that there should be severe punishments and banning orders for those prosecuted for neglect or cruelty.

Kind regards,

Joy
