CLAUSE 9

2. Page 16, in lines 23 and 24 for “employed or, who are considering becoming employed” substitute “engaged under a contract of service or for services or otherwise, or who are considering engaging in that way”.

CLAUSE 11

3. Page 16, line 35 for subsections (2), (3) and (4) substitute—
 - “(2) The Department must, by regulations, make provision as to the information to be provided by a relevant service provider in a case where an incident of a specified description, or a prescribed degree of severity, affecting a service user’s safety occurs in the course of the service user being provided with a health service or a social care service.
Tynwald procedure —approval required.
 - (3) Regulations may set out a “duty of candour procedure” applicable to a relevant service provider and may in particular make provision about —
 - (a) the notification to be given by the relevant service provider;
 - (b) the apology to be provided by the relevant service provider to a service user or relevant person;
 - (c) the actions to be taken by the relevant service provider to offer and arrange a meeting with a service user or relevant person, including asking them whether they wish to receive an account of the incident referred to in subsection (2) or information about further steps taken;
 - (d) the actions which must be taken at, and following, such a meeting;
 - (e) an account of the incident referred to in subsection (2);
 - (f) information about further steps taken and any other information to be provided by the relevant service provider;
 - (g) the form and manner in which information must be provided;

- (h) the circumstances in which the relevant service provider is to make available, or provide information about, support to persons affected by the incident;
 - (i) the keeping of information by the relevant service provider;
 - (j) steps to be taken by the relevant service provider —
 - (i) to review the circumstances leading to the incident; and
 - (ii) following such a review, even if the service user or relevant person has advised that they do not wish to receive an account of the incident as mentioned in subsection (2) or information about further steps taken;
 - (k) training, supervision and support to be provided by a relevant service provider to any person carrying out any part of the procedure on behalf of the relevant service provider;
 - (l) a relevant person.
- (4) Regulations may provide for —
- (a) the making of a report on the duty of candour which must not mention the name of any individual or contain any information which, in the relevant service provider’s opinion, is likely to identify any individual; and
 - (b) the timing of such a report.
- (5) Regulations may, in respect of a report referred to in subsection (4), provide that it must include —
- (a) information about the number and nature of incidents to which the duty has applied;
 - (b) an assessment of the extent to which the relevant service provider carried out the duty;
 - (c) information about the relevant service provider’s policies and procedures in relation to the duty, including information about—
 - (i) procedures for identifying and reporting incidents; and
 - (ii) support available to staff and to persons affected by incidents,
 - (d) information about any changes to the relevant service provider’s policies and procedures as a result of incidents to which the duty has applied; and
 - (e) such other information as the relevant service provider thinks fit.
- (6) The relevant service provider must publish a report referred to in subsection (4) in such manner as the relevant service provider thinks appropriate.
- (7) “Apology” means a statement of sorrow or regret in respect of an incident referred to in subsection (2) and an apology or other step taken in accordance with the duty of candour does not of itself amount to an admission of negligence or a breach of a statutory duty.
- (8) “Relevant service provider” has the same meaning as in paragraph 7(11) of Schedule 1.”
